GERMAN BUILDING
BIG SECRET FLEET

New Type of Ship, Which, It Is Said, Will Revolutionize Naval Warfare

DREADNOUGHTS USELESS

Design Was First Offered to the British Government, But Was Ignored

LONDON, March 1.

A disclosure of supreme importance affecting the naval position of Great Britain is made in the Engineer, a technical paper of the highest reputation, which does not make statements without reliable authority.

This journal gives details of a formidable and entirely new type of warship which is being constructed for the German navy. The design was first offered to the British government, but beyond a bare acknowledgment, no further action was taken.

The new type is described as "speedier than any dreadnought. It lies low in the water, not much more than a wash, and it rights itself on the only target it presents to the enemy's fire is a low shield sloping backward, and of such shape and thickness as to be virtually impenetrable."

Long-Range Fighting
"It serves as the carriage of a single gun of maximum power, furnished with projectiles that play the part of aerial torpedoes, and the gun remains perpetually screened, except at the moment of firing."

The vessel can keep the sea in all weather and can fight effectively at the longest ranges. Twenty of these destroyers can be built for the cost of a single super-dreadnought, and the German navy experts believe, with some reason, that a super-dreadnought must inevitably succumb if attacked by even five of such small craft.

It is stated by the writer of the article in the Engineer that the attention of the British government was drawn to this type in a letter sent to Mr. Asquith some four years ago on behalf of a group of continental engineers, who had been made acquainted with a certain design prepared jointly by the late Sir Edward Reed (a former chief constructor of the navy) and the writer of the article.

Rejected by England
This design was prepared in 1881, and the engineers alluded to had elaborated the design in accordance with the progress of naval architecture and armament between 1881 and 1900, and had also taken part in the development of submarine vessels for naval purposes.

Mr. Asquith formally acknowledged the receipt of the letter, says the writer, "and there the matter dropped so far as England was concerned."

A different fate, however, awaited an analogous communication addressed by the same group of engineers to a very high quarter in Germany. Action thereupon was taken under conditions of a most profound secrecy, which have been successfully maintained for nearly four years.

Matters have now reached a development of such magnitude, however, adds the writer, that certain particulars of what Germany is doing have begun to leak and become known.

He considers that "in view of the attitude that has just been taken up by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, it seems desirable for the British public to be given an inkling of the true state of affairs. The German dreadnoughts he declares to be a ruse."

Destroyers' Value
"They loom large in popular estimation—and it is feared, in that of the British admiralty also—as the first line of battle; but in reality they are intended to play a secondary part. The stress of conflict will lie with the German destroyers and submarines."

In regard to submarines, the writer makes the equally startling assertion that a German "submarine of immense size" has been built, and that it is intended to be employed for relatively distant expeditions without detection, as they need now show themselves in the daytime, and can wait for night before coming to the surface to renew their stock of air.

SOCIETY WOMEN WAR
ON EXTRAVAGANCE

Stockings Costing $240 a Pair Purchased by Paris Women

A SIMPLICITY CAMPAIGN

Luxury in woman's dress has reached such a pitch in Paris that society women here are proposing to organize a simplicity campaign.

It is not so much the prices paid for the dresses themselves as the money asked and paid for accessories, which are exceeding the powers of all but the deepest purses. The extravagance in stockings has grown in inverse ratio to the thickness of the material.

A shop near the Opera sells stockings at $2 a pair at the cheapest. An inquiry for the most expensive produced some at $20 and $20 a pair, made of Chantilly lace, Machine lace or tissue of gold.

In the Rue de la Paix a fashionable purveyor of white underwear stated that he had no trousseau under $100, and that $10 and $20 were the prices for "cheap" nightdresses. Another shop of the same kind making a specialty of corsets has quite cheap ones at $15 and a little better quality at $20; "but of course," said the shopkeeper, "when a lady wants a really fashionable corset she has to pay for it."
